Consolation

"There's a crack on the Chittenden door," said Mrs. Cressler. "Chittenden has passed away. Poor Chittenden! He should not do so. Mrs. Cressler had been obliged to endure that woman for so long! It's a wonder he lived as long as he did. Well, I suppose I must go over and offer the usual consolation."

Now, there was not only a want of reason for Mrs. Cressler's going over to offer the "usual consolation," but there was a surplus of reason why she should not do so. Mrs. Cressler had herself been Mrs. Chittenden and by good rights should have been the widow. But she had tired of Chittenden, sent him off and secured a divorce on the ground of desertion. On the day the divorce was granted she had married Tim Cressler. Chittenden, who had been forced to desert one woman, clung to another and married her. Cressler was still living with Chittenden's first wife, but report said that he was very abusive, the reports emanating from his wife, and if he did not mend his ways he, too, would be forced to desert her. Mrs. Cressler's intention was to offer Mrs. Chittenden that kind of consolation which Satan would give a soul he had purchased—that is, he would thrust it into hell.

"Good morning, Mrs. Chittenden. I have thought, considering what we have both been to poor Chittenden, I would come over and offer my sympathies. Notwithstanding his faults he was too good for most women."

"He was too good for me," said the widow demurely, "but I suppose he wasn't good enough for you, Mrs. Cressler, or he wouldn't have left you."

"I was glad when I saw that you and Chauncey were getting on so well together. There was too great a gap between him and me. Chauncey was not a smart man."

"His first wife was," said Mrs. Cressler modestly, "but Chauncey was very dull. He needed a wife of very moderate intellect."

"You were fortunate in getting another husband the day you got your divorce from the one that deserted you," said Mrs. Chittenden. "Maybe instead of luck it was smartness."

"I didn't want poor Chauncey to suffer from thinking I'd take him back."

"It was very kind of you not to make him suffer any longer than he did."

"There wasn't any time—if I hadn't been married—that he wouldn't have been glad to return to his sufferings."

"Then it must have been lucky for him that you were married."

"We'd see about that some day, only in heaven there's no marrying or giving in marriage."

"How is it in the other place? Do you think you're going to have him there?"

"I'm not going there, Mrs. Chittenden, nor is Chauncey. If there's marrying there you'll have to look out for a new husband."

"You'd have both Chauncey and Tim Cressler in heaven, only there's no more bigamy there than marriage."

Mrs. Cressler was not getting ahead in the game. Her thrusts were vigorous, but they were parried with great skill. There was one thing she had come over for that thus far she had not gained—a knowledge of what funds Chittenden had left his widow. She had a vague hope that the law might look kindly upon her and consider her a fraction of that widow.

"I hope Chauncey left you comfortable, Mrs. Chittenden," she said in a tone to intimate that she would like to get back to her purpose of offering consolation.

"It's you he's left comfortable," replied the other, "because he was nothing to you. He left me uncomfortable because we were everything to each other."

"They say you made a frugal wife and he left a penny or so in the bank."

"He did, and to his widow."

"There's alimony due me."

"I hope you may get it."

"If it's due the law 'll allow it."

"Yes, if it's due. You got your divorce at noon and married at 1 o'clock. There's alimony for one hour due you."

"I suppose it wouldn't look well for me to come to the funeral."

"Chauncey's funeral, so far as his first wife is concerned, occurred long ago."

"Of course I'd like to show my kindly sympathy for you. The neighbors might think it queer of me to be here, but it would show them that I'm not malicious."

"Oh, they know you haven't any grudge against me. It was I who made it easy for you. Chauncey was well enough satisfied with the desertion plan after he met me."

"H'm! They all know that I wouldn't stand him any longer."

"He told me he was afraid you would."

"I'd have just liked to hear him say that in the flesh."

There was a step in the back room—the room where Mrs. Cressler supposed the corpse was lying—a man's step, and who should walk into the room but Chauncey Chittenden.

"That's a mercy!" exclaimed Mrs. Cressler. "I thought you were dead!"

"That's the fellow in the other flat."

"What have you been lying to me for this way, Mrs. Chittenden?"

"I haven't been lying."

"And you, Chauncey Chittenden—I always thought you were above eavesdropping."

"A corpse can't eavesdrop. I am only a corpse so far as you are concerned. I heard what you thought of me alive long ago. I'm glad to hear what you think of me dead."

Mrs. Cressler flounced out.

A LIQUID GOLD LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For the want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard. Nearly all other cough cures are constipating, especially those containing Opium. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar moves the bowels, contains no Opium."

KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE HONEY AND TAR

Relieves Colds by working them out of the system through a copious action of the bowels.

Relieves Coughs by cleansing and strengthening the mucous membranes of the throat, chest, lungs and bronchial tubes. For Croup, Whooping Cough, La Grippe, Hoarseness, Bronchitis and all Coughs, Colds, Lung and Bronchial affections no remedy is equal to Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Children like it.

Put up in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles at the Laboratory of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Mr. Robert O. Barke, Elnora, N. Y., writes: "Before I started to use Foley's Kidney Cure I had to get up from twelve to twenty times a night, and I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. I had given up hope of living, when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure. One 50 cent bottle worked wonders and before I had taken the third bottle the dropsy had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Bright's disease." Sold by Sturt & Wilson.

To Cheer Him.
The wife of his bosom was going to leave him for a fortnight, and Fitz-Tomkins was trying his very best to look sad.

"My dear," he said, choking back a chuckle with his handkerchief and wiping his eyes, "I hardly dare to think how I shall miss you. The evenings will be so long and lonely without you. I shall have no one to talk to."

"George," said Mrs. Fitz, surveying him with a marble eye, "I have provided for your comfort in this as in every other way. When you return home you will find dear mother there. She will remain till I come back and keep you company in the evenings, George."

And as the train slowly glided out of the station the guard wondered why Fitz-Tomkins nearly bit him when he insinuated a tip.—London Telegraph.

Knew the Measure.

"When you get your groceries today," said the butcher to his wife, "don't go to that little grocer next door to my shop."

"Why not?" she demanded.

"Because he sent in yesterday and borrowed an old pair of scales."

Could Take His Choice.

At a recent inquest in a Pennsylvania town one of the jurors, after the usual swearing in, arose and with much dignity protested against service, alleging that he was the general manager of an important concern and was wasting valuable time by sitting as a juror at an inquest. The coroner, turning to his clerk, said: "Mr. Moran, kindly hand me 'Jervis' (the authority on juries)." Then, after consulting the book, the coroner observed to the unwilling juror:

"Upon reference to 'Jervis,' I find, sir, that no persons are exempt from service as jurors except idiots, imbeciles and lunatics. Now, under which heading do you claim exemption?"—Success Magazine.

Walnuts in France.

In some parts of France walnuts form a regular article of diet. The peasants eat them with bread that has oftentimes been rubbed with garlic. The hygienic effects are considered good, replacing meat to a large extent. These nuts are also used to make oil. It is much cheaper and similar in taste to that pressed from olives and is employed to adulterate the latter. The prisoners in certain prisons are engaged in cracking walnuts and picking out the kernels, which are pressed into oil.

The World's Debt to Flowers.

I have never known man or woman who has not improved in character by becoming devoted to the affairs of flowers, and I venture to say that the world at large is under the deepest obligation to pansies, violets, roses and lilies, to name but a few of the blossoms that silently help the good angel of mankind.—Christian World.

Dairy and Food Commissioner's Report.

The Minnesota Dairy and Food Commissioner's analysis shows that Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar contained opiates and croton oil. Opiates are poisons and croton oil is a violent poisonous purgative. Refuse to accept any but Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Foley's Honey and Tar contains no opiates or dangerous drugs and is the best cough and cold cure. Sold by Sturt & Wilson.
